ITALIAN VOTERS IN EIGHTH BOLT "MACHINE" SLATE

Convention Attended by 23 Readers of
"Il Sole" Endorses Independent
Ticket.

The Eighth district Republicans have three delegate tickets in the field two candidates for alderman and Alderman John O'Connell's followers have not been heard from as yet. The first ticket, a Morris ticket, came out about a week ago. On it were the names of Robert Farrell, Thomas Watt and Pearl Cheeseman. Friday some of the residents of the district, who live along North avenue, held a caucus which they claimed was the "regular" caucus. The ticket was Charles A. Nichols, Edward B. Greene and Frank Caseria. This faction named George Seltman as its candidate for alderman. The ticket was an Italian one. The ticket was placed in the field reached that section of the district including Columbus place, Grand street and North Washington avenue there was a storm.

A dozen of the voters whose names appear on the Republican primary list got together and gave a dinner of roast chicken, spaghetti and white wine at the home of Louis Napolitano, 203 North Washington avenue. The political situation was talked over and yesterday morning District Chairman Loren Debridge was waited upon by a delegation of Italian Republicans from the Eighth district. They said that they represented the 35 out of the 40 Italians on the primary list and they protested against a caucus being held in the district unless they were represented. Chairman Debridge said he would call any kind of a caucus they wanted as he had nothing to do with the caucus which put the Nichols-Greeseria ticket in the field. "We will hold the regular party caucus for the district," said the spokesman for the Italians. "All right," said Debridge. "I'll put an advertisement in the Standard and we will have a crowd."

The Italians got a store at 310 North Washington street. The store was after the advertisement appeared in the party organ 35 people assembled including 23 readers of "Il Sole." Chairman Debridge, backed the meeting to order and several Italians arose and declared that they did not know George Seltman who lives out in the country. They wanted a fine man who lived in the business section of the district. Patrick Rice nominated Joe D'Agostino for alderman. He said that Joe was a fine man who owns the finest brick building in Main street between Bull's head and Grand street, and that Joe had $15,000 invested in his saloon and other enterprises. Joe D'Agostino was nominated for alderman by acclamation. There was a wild cheer from 23 throats and then Robert Farrell who is one of the Morris delegates said that he thought it would be a good time to launch a delegate ticket. The chairman told him to go as far as he liked. He nominated Thomas Watt and then the ticket. Robert Farrell also nominated Pearl Cheeseman and then Thomas Watt nominated Robert Farrell. Watt said that he had a fine man who lives at the Adams Express Co. got onto his feet and nominated his brother, Robert Ballou for a delegate. Robert Ballou then nominated R. G. Roberts who lives down stairs beneath him in Parallel street. Then Frank Loper made a speech that was the crowning success of his life in nominating Patrick Rice, his fellow countryman as the tail end of the ticket. The ticket with Rice's name on it won out by a vote of 23 to 13.

Ralph Borino wound up the meeting by making a motion that the convention should go unpledged to the caucus broke up with three cheers for Louis Richards.

These Are the Prize Winning Essays on "Happiness"

Selected by Major Marigold President of the Board of Education

THE LABORDE-GELMAN COMPANY,

Gentlemen:—

In compliance with your request, I have examined the "Essays on Happiness," written by children in competition for prizes which you have offered, and confess that out of the very considerable number offered, I find so many excellent ones that I find it hard to decide which possesses the most merit. However, as it appears to me, the one I have marked (1) should receive the first prize on account of the happy disposition he describes during his illness, the one marked (2) on account of the excellent phraseology employed to express very beautiful sentiments, the one marked (3) to have third prize because of clever rhyming in connection with thoughts well expressed. The one marked (4) should be specially mentioned on account of the most excellent penmanship and the well thought out wording. I regret that I cannot make all the little folks happy by marking all for a prize, but I trust that the sentiment so well expressed by many of them in their essays that we should all ways try to be happy, even under disappointment may serve to keep them happy now.

Yours very truly, W. H. MARIGOLD,

President Bridgeport Board of Education.

HAPPINESS

Happiness does not consist in riches, position, nor occupation: All may be happy. Happiness is often found in humble homes where there are contented minds. Happiness may often come to a sick friend through a flower given by a little child; or a kind word spoken to a tired mother, or by giving up a pleasure trip, to add to some one's Happiness. We little people, can do our part toward the Happiness of our Mother, by doing cheerfully the tasks she assigns us. School days brings Happiness to us little folks, for we are free from care. If we would be truly happy we must think of others Happiness, and be willing to share our pleasures with each other. It is a beautiful world we are living in; Happiness comes to all in some way, what makes one happy might not add to another's Happiness. Let us all seek Happiness in our own way, by trying to make other people happy.

First Prize, Gold Watch for Boy, won by

North Bridgeport, Oct. 9, 1909.

DEAR SIRS:—

I am a lame boy I have been lame for nearly two years. About four months ago I could not put my foot on the ground, but now I can walk on my crutches. I feel very happy now because I can go to school and any where else. About six months ago I lay in bed feeling miserable, but now I can walk and feel happy because I can romp and play like all children. I had belonged in the Kind Deed Club once, but when I got hurt and lie in bed I could not lift a pen to write with to the Kind Deed Club so I am going to write some nice letters to the Club again, and I am going to feel happy, hoping to win a prize.

Yours Respectfully,
JOHN WALCIS

750 KNIGHTS GO TO NEW HAVEN

About 1,100 Persons Leave Bridgeport to Participate in Columbus Day Celebration.

"FINEST" HEAD COLUMN

Fully 750 members of the Knights of Columbus left this city this morning for New Haven, to represent this city in the big procession to be held there in celebration of the first legal observance of Columbus Day. There were 250 went on early trains and the remaining 500 formed in line in Main street near Gilbert street and marched to the railroad headed by the Wheeler & Wilson band. The Bridgeporters made an excellent appearance and are sure to get much applause along the line of march in the Elm city. Each marcher carried an American flag, and at the head of the column were sixteen of Bridgeport's "finest" with Captain John Redgate in command and Sergeant John Regan as aide. The officers, the members of their staffs, and the aides, were attired in frock coats and silk hats. The column moved up Main street to Golden Hill street, and down Golden Hill street to the railroad station where they boarded a special train at 9:35 o'clock. The parade in New Haven took place at 11 o'clock. Despite the fact that the rain fell in torrents here from 2 to 4 o'clock this morning, by 6 o'clock the sun came out, and upon the most beautiful days of the year.

Shortly after the Knights reached the railroad station the local Italian societies en route to New Haven, to parade this afternoon, passed over the Stratford avenue bridge, and paraded through the center of the city, after passing through the principal streets of the Italian colony in East Bridgeport. These societies took about 330 marchers to New Haven and were accompanied by the Coast Artillery band, the Bridgeport Italian band, and the Blue Ribbon drum corps. When the George Dewey Society was passing through Main street the marchers found the thoroughfare in such a deplorable condition they were obliged to take to the sidewalk from Arch street to East Washington avenue. The societies which went to New Haven were the Christopher Columbus Society, the George Dewey Society, Castelfranco, Asunta Society, Sautana Society, Society of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, and the Court Roma, Foresters of America.

ENGINEER KILLED

(Special from United Press.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—William H. Hornberger, 31, of Lansdale, engineer of the Royal Blue Flyer, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, from New York to Washington, was killed and the lives of more than 100 sleeping passengers imperiled today when the express crashed into a shifting engine at the Belmont yards of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway.

The accident was due it is said by the shifting engine disregarding signals. It was struck square in the center of the track when the express was struck by flying debris and flung from his seat beneath the wheels of his train.

The passengers were thrown into a panic by the collision but none was hurt.

MRS. FISKE IN A PLAY OF THE SLUMS

"SALVATION NELL" SEEMINGLY SERVES NO GOOD PURPOSE—
FINE ACTING ALONE SAVES IT.

"Anything that God has permitted to happen I am not too proud to print," said Charles A. Dana, once, when he had been reproached for some of the matter that appeared in the columns of The Sun. Dana's excuse in the only extension that can be offered for "Salvation Nell," the realistic comedy in which Mrs. Fiske has now for some time starred, and which she presented to a large house, at Jackson's, last night. Providence, in its inscrutable purpose, has permitted, and does permit, just such persons to exist, such sordid scenes to be enacted, as are portrayed in "Salvation Nell."

Dives of tears are no doubt, and places unmentionable in decent society, and their habitants are such as Harrison Gray Fiske pictures in his play. But what good is it to place before the eyes, unsavory, upon a stage frankly devoted to amusement. A toad is a fact, and so is a centipede. But a drama of toads and centipedes is not therefore desirable. The play is lifted from the mud by the genius of Mrs. Fiske, and of her leading man, Holbrook Blinn, who gives a realistic impersonation of Jim Platt, drunkard, tough, thus, one living on the earnings of women. Nevertheless all their skill did not prevent a bad taste in the mouth of those who saw "Salvation Nell."

The evolutionists have figured it out that once man dragged woman with violence to his home, and made her, by force, his bride. These say that long centuries of this sort of custom and inheritance have left in women a more than faint trace of admiration for the brute and of desire to yield to the brute the strongest muscle and the hardest fist. How else shall the hard driven critic account for the manifest satisfaction with which an audience composed of women of culture and training saw, the climax of the play, the implied re-union of the woman with this hopeless, thus, temporarily touched with maudlin sentiment, to be sure, but never with real repentance.

So exact was the realism of Mrs. Fiske's play that one having knowledge first hand of his types is certain that the penitent will beat his wife the first week, spend her money for drink in the second week, and shamelessly abandon her for some shameless companion in the third week.

We hope that Mrs. Fiske will turn her genius to the presentation of nobler themes.

Teachers are wanted for MECHANICAL NIGHT COURSE. So great is the interest in the mechanical night course at the Y. M. C. A. that more teachers are needed at once to take care of the big enrollment. As advertised in another column the kind of teachers wanted are men of Christian character with mechanical and drafting experience. The larger percentage of the students come from the shop and do not expect to become draughtsmen, but want a better working knowledge of drawings and shop mathematics.

Notwithstanding that two groups have already started, a third is to be started this week and at least three more soon to follow, anyone from 15 years of age up can come in at this time and find a place where he will fit. Those interested are invited especially to visit the Association building on either Tuesday or Thursday evening and see two of the groups at work. A private interview to secure full information regarding the classes may however be obtained any week day evening.

Practically all the supplies necessary are furnished to the students this year without extra charge. This has been and will continue to be a great help in getting the classes started smoothly.

MURDER MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP

Canadian Confessed in London Today to Killing Ethel Kinrade in Hamilton

EASING HIS CONSCIENCE

(Special from United Press.)
London, Oct. 12.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Miss Ethel Kinrade in Hamilton, Ontario, Feb. 21, was cleared up to-day in the Bow street police court when a Canadian named Edward W. Bedford confessed to shooting the girl.
Bedford says he was hired for $500 to kill Miss Kinrade, his employer being an unknown man whom he met in Toronto. The two men went to Hamilton and the stranger pointed out the house where Miss Kinrade lived. Bedford says he summoned Ethel to the door and then shot her to death.
The money was paid over and no questions were asked. Bedford says he was in hard straits at the time and would have done anything for money. He fled to England and finally gave himself up he says, to ease his conscience. Bedford told his story in a straightforward manner and the police are inclined to believe that he is telling the truth.
Bedford said the man who hired him to do the killing said that the Kinrade girl had jilted him and he wanted to be revenged.

DURANT WILL WRITE PLAY FOR MR. BLINN

Harold R. Durant of Waterbury, the well known author, was in this city, this morning, in consultation with Holbrook Blinn, who is leading man in "Salvation Nell," relative to a play which he is writing for Mr. Blinn. It is said that the play will deal with the Napoleonic period.

GOULD'S DEFEAT SHOWS ARNOLD WEAK IN FIRST

The line-up for Republican primaries will be disclosed to-night when the delegate tickets selected by the opposing factions must, under the rules of that party, be advertised in the official party organ, for the three days that precede the convention. There will be contesting delegations in almost every district. Mainly these delegations will attach to Republicans who desire to beat the Republican machine, and who are for Harbor Master Charles H. Morris for mayor or to the "Machine" and Mayor Leonard J. Gould, who participated in the regular caucus, last night, was beaten for a place on the delegate ticket. William E. Seecley was chairman of the meeting. J. Harry Crossley, Malcolm McFadden, and Dr. C. Lincoln Banks were put into nomination, with Alderman Gould. The latter had the least number of votes. But Arnold still has a chance to carry the Seventh, and the Fourth by his own strength and that of his friends, without regard to an alliance with the "machine."
